Related: Ch 27.

- 3 A small company specialises in manufacturing medical equipment. Approximately 75% of its business relates to a single high value product, for which it has a market share of around 60%. The company operates from a single site.

The shareholders of the company have agreed to accept an offer for their shares from a large multinational conglomerate. The multinational does not manufacture the company's main product line, but it does manufacture some of the company's other products. The multinational intends to continue to operate the existing plant and premises.

- (i) Discuss how the change in ownership could affect the operations of the small company and hence the attitude towards obtaining insurance cover for the risks that it faces. [3]
- (ii) List the types of insurance cover that the small company is likely to have had in place prior to its acquisition. [4]
- (iii) Discuss how and why the existing insurance arrangements might change following the acquisition. [6]
